

GCE Advanced Level History

GCE Advanced Level History

Description:

The aims and objectives of the AQA GCE Advanced History are to enable students to:

- Study the nature of causes and consequences, of change and continuity and of similarity and differences over a long period of time.
- Study the links between perspectives, such as political, economic, social or religious as well as appreciating developments relating to the perspectives separately over time.
- Study roles played by individuals, groups, ideas or ideology.

Students are encouraged to understand and think intelligently about aspects of History. It involves much more than just learning vast amounts of factual information. Of course, there is a lot to learn and students will immediately notice in how much greater detail a topic is covered than at GCSE. However, what most students find most rewarding in History is the attempt to understand, evaluate and analyse the past. Questions at AS/A level will never just ask students to simply recount what happened. They are designed to make you think critically about the material and to formulate your own judgement.

Career paths:

Learners will have a number of skills relevant to many types of employment, such as the ability to seek information and to analyse it in order to identify facts and motives and to present information clearly for others to understand.

The skills you will obtain through studying history will be useful in a number of careers such as:

- Museum Curator
- Gallery Manager
- Heritage Director
- Record Offices and Archives Manager
- Teaching
- Journalism
